

Berkeley Journal of African-American Law & Policy

January 25, 2008

Announcing the Berkeley Prize In Legal Scholarship
Call for papers by law students on topics relevant to African-Americans and minority communities

The Berkeley Journal of African-American Law & Policy (BJALP) is pleased to announce its first-ever Berkeley Prize In Legal Scholarship – open to all law students at ABA-accredited law schools.

The Berkeley Journal of African-American Law & Policy is a vital publication addressing legal and policy issues that predominantly affect African-American communities. As one of only three such law journals in the nation, BJALP plays a crucial part in UC Berkeley's role as an institution at the vanguard of legal theory and public policy.

BJALP seeks papers written by law students on topics relevant to African-Americans and minority communities. The Berkeley Prize in Legal Scholarship will be awarded to the law student whose paper is selected for publication in Volume XI (2009) of BJALP. The prize will include a $1,000 award.

To apply:

- E-mail your submission to bjalp@law.berkeley.edu indicating that you are applying for the Berkeley Prize in Legal Scholarship
- Include a completed draft, resume/cv, and cover letter
- Papers should be between 30 and 50 pages (double-spaced including footnotes)
- Deadline: May 1, 2008

For more information:

- Call our journal office at (510) 642-0423
- E-mail us at bjalp@law.berkeley.edu
- Check www.boalt.org/bjalp for any updates